DOXMAN

Doxense employees are now defined as Doxmen.

In a few words ... The Doxmen:

- o Agree to be major players in the life of the company.*
- o Decide and act with maximum autonomy.*
- o Challenge and evolve the organisation.*
- o Provoke change.*
- o Strengthening proposals.*

Doxman is not a succession of acts of management, to be Doxman is to accept a certain philosophy of life in the company. Whatever the contribution of the profession, seeing, understanding, targeting, deciding and acting are the five steps of a common process.

The Vision 2030, its objectives, commitments and values, combined with the Doxman philosophy, make Doxense a company with employees committed to providing answers that are always in line with the expectations of its partners and customers.

Vincent LEMAIRE, Managing Director of Doxense, comments on the genesis of the Vision 2030 project:

*"The challenges of tomorrow, in addition to printing, revolve around dematerialization, data manipulation and therefore artificial intelligence.
As data volumes double every 3 months it is generating a real IT revolution "(* (cc) 2014 Adjuvi LLC, Creative Commons, Some Rights Reserved).*

Just to add:

"The challenge is now to analyse data and then transform it into business. Faced with these changes, the speed of adaptation and execution will be paramount. The coexistence of paper and digital flows will be persistent.

In response, we wanted to be pro-active, with two major announcements in 2018, first of all the capital merger with SAGES Informatique - Publisher of the Zeendoc solution announced on IT PARTNERS last March. Then via the launch of our Vision 2030, a solid base to approach these future revolutions ".

About Doxense

Present in Europe, the USA, China, the Middle East and Africa, Doxense is the publisher of dedicated printing solutions. This company, created in 2005, markets a software suite dedicated to the management of documents and printing.

Doxense's mission is to help its customers achieve their productivity and profitability goals by making the most of all printing, copying and scanning resources.

Its solutions are independent of the manufacturer's equipment and can generate substantial savings, both in the private and public sector. They empower the user to be aware of the cost and the environmental impacts of his printouts. They also allow customers and partners to address the copiers and printers of all their customers and thus be able to remotely manage contracts, the installed base, the consumable levels, counters, alerts or the utilisation rate of each of the devices.

The major technological agreements signed with most manufacturers reinforce the reputation of Doxense, whose ease of installation and the ergonomics of the solutions are well appreciated.

Lastly, the recent capital merger with SAGES Informatique, publisher of the Zeendoc document management solution, brings the new group into a promising new dimension.
